

Nature has produced nothing more fascinatingly wonderful than sweet scented flowers, and the great poets of all times have in their impassioned lines sung the charms of fair women, as compared to flowers. To complete the simile and realize the ideal thus pictured, how natural that the perfume's aid should be invoked.

And in these different lines of perfumes from such makers as Hudenut, Vantine, Roger and Gal-Jet, which we here bring to your attention, are odors truthfully illustrating the fragrance of the fresh flowers in their utmost intensity; superb and original creations, distinctive in character, not ordinary, but imparting to the personality that rich and ever sought for atmosphere of refinement.

BESIDES a most complete selection of fine PERFUMES we have all necessary cosmetics such as soaps, powders, toilet waters, teeth essentials, rouges, etc.

VAUDEVILLE MAN FREED BY JUDGE; POLICE ON HUNT

De Oria's Charge That He Was "Jobbed" Denied: Held Because of Girl's Story

After considering the case over night Judge Monsarrat this morning dismissed Walter De Oria, a vaudeville performer, charged with assault and battery on Lizzie Tellis, a 13-year-old girl, the afternoon of February 5, at Waikiki. De Oria was arrested in company with the girl by Police-man Kramer and claimed he met her accidentally and brought her some food because she said she was hungry.

The evidence on the stand charged that the girl had not only been hugged and kissed by De Oria, but that he had made further advances to her, testimony by one witness, W. Kealoha, being that the man acted improperly. It appears that previous to meeting De Oria at Kapiolani park, the girl, according to her own story, had met another man, a half-white, downtown, accompanied him to the park at his solicitation, and there was assaulted by him. Later De Oria came along and began talking to her and it was then, according to the testimony, that he made his advances.

An article published this morning charging that the detective bureau had taken no steps to apprehend the man who actually assaulted the girl, and had arrested and held De Oria to "save his face," is emphatically denied by the police authorities.

Captain of Detectives McDuffie says that after he had told Sheriff Rose what the girl said about De Oria—that is, the story of his improper advances—the sheriff told McDuffie to consult the county attorney. Deputy Attorney Chillingworth instructed McDuffie to enter a charge of assault and battery, which was done and De Oria was held.

Chillingworth also said that Claudius McBride, attorney for De Oria, offered to have his client plead guilty if the judge would assess only a $10 fine, saying that De Oria would get out of the country. This, says Chillingworth, he himself would not assent to, declaring that it was up to the court to fix the fine. Those who were in police court yesterday say that Attorney McBride then conferred with Judge Monsarrat in the judge's private office, and that after the case had been tried the judge took it under advisement. The upshot was the dismissal of the case by Judge Monsarrat this morning.

"It is not true that we are not trying to apprehend the man who assaulted the girl," said McDuffie this morning. "She didn't know his name—couldn't even give a good description, but finally said that he talked with the conductor of the car on which she rode. We have endeavored to get into communication with this man and he was to have come down this morning. It has taken several days to trace the man because the girl is very ignorant and can tell us practically nothing of him."

At the hearing of the case against De Oria yesterday afternoon, Lizzie Tellis testified that she met a man in the public library and with him went to Kapiolani park, where he assaulted her. She left the park, and went to a lot in which is the home of a Hawaiian, near the Beckley residence on Waikiki beach, and was sitting among some trees crying, when De Oria came up. He went to a store to get her something to eat, she said, and while he was gone a Hawaiian named Kealoha came to her and made some advances. She told him to go away, and he did, but came back with a policeman, according to the girl's story, and when De Oria returned the policeman arrested her and De Oria.

The Tellis girl said De Oria hugged and kissed her before he went to the store.

On the stand Kealoha said he did not make any advances to the girl, but admitted he asked her to go home with him.

Attorney C. H. McBride, who appeared for De Oria, denounced the detective department, and said they tried to "railroad" De Oria because they could not find the man who was really guilty of assaulting the 13-year-old girl.

DAUGHTER OF JOHN HARVEY BALL WANTS HIM TO COME HOME

Does any one know John Harvey Ball, who came to Honolulu in 1908 from California?

His daughter, Stella, now Mrs. C. H. McCharles, has written to Mayor Lane asking for information in regard to him. She says that he was 61 years old at the time he came here and had but little money and few clothes. She is worried about him and fears that he may have lost his mind. She has married since she last heard from him and he has three grandchildren that he has never seen. She wants him to come to Pasadena, where she lives, and stay where he may have a daughter's loving care.

When she last saw him he was five feet seven inches tall, wore a moustache, had plenty of dark hair and stooped slightly. He had blue eyes.

The Star-Bulletin will forward any information to be obtained to Mrs. McCharles.

POLISH WOMEN ARE USING WITCHCRAFT

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Witchcraft is being practised by certain Polish persons on the west side here. At an insanity inquest it has been learned that an aged woman, giving her name as Gottlieb Borkowska, has been posing as a witch.

A few days ago when a four months-old babe was dying in the household of Jan Bykowski, the Borkowska woman appeared and induced the mother to give a teaspoonful of blood from the veins in her neck and feed it to the child. This, asserted the "witch," would save the infant. The mother was charged a $9 fee.
